TerraBloom: Hands in the Earth, Eyes on the Future
PROJECT NUMBER: 2024-3-EL02-KA153-YOU-000268979

The Erasmus+ KA153-YOU project TerraBloom: Hands in the Earth, Eyes on the Future successfully implemented its international mobility activity in Naousa from 15 to 19 December 2025, with participants travelling on 14 and 20 December. The activity brought together 36 youth workers from Greece, Romania, Italy, Czechia, Hungary, and Spain for a dynamic week of learning, collaboration, and intercultural exchange.

Hosted by iAgroCert, the mobility focused on environmental sustainability, youth empowerment, community engagement, and innovative approaches in youth work. Through a combination of non-formal education methods, interactive workshops, group discussions, simulations, teamwork exercises, and study visits, participants explored how sustainability-related topics can be integrated into youth work practices and local initiatives.

During the activity, participants exchanged experiences and good practices from their countries while discussing common environmental and social challenges affecting young people across Europe. Special emphasis was placed on active citizenship, inclusion, ecological responsibility, and the role of youth workers in encouraging young people to become more engaged within their communities.

The training programme also included reflection sessions and collaborative activities designed to strengthen communication, leadership, critical thinking, and problem-solving competences. Participants worked in multicultural teams, creating a positive space for intercultural dialogue and mutual learning.

One of the highlights of the mobility was the series of intercultural evenings, during which participants presented traditions, music, food, and cultural elements from their countries. These evenings strengthened friendships, encouraged cultural understanding, and created a strong sense of European cooperation among the participants.
